[Amendment] Notice of Misstatements of Value of New Business and Other Information for Fiscal 2020, Fiscal 2021, Fiscal 2022, and 1Q of Fiscal 2023

(Amendments of Supplementary Materials and European Embedded Value Disclosure)

Dai-ichi Life Holdings, Inc. (the “Company”) hereby announces that it has identified misstatements in the Group's value of new business, the non-consolidated value of new business of the Dai-ichi Life Insurance Company, Limited (the “Dai-ichi Life”), and related figures reported for past and current fiscal years.

We sincerely apologize to our shareholders, investors, and other concerned parties for any inconvenience and concern this matter may cause.

1. Details of the misstatements

The company has identified misstatements in the previously announced value of new business, new business margin, and present value of premium income of the Group and those of Dai-ichi Life on a non-consolidated basis for fiscal 2020, fiscal 2021, and fiscal 2022, and the value of new business (estimated value) of the Group and of Dai-ichi Life on a non-consolidated basis for the first quarter of fiscal 2023. The figures of each item before and after the amendments are shown in the Appendix.

2. Scope of impact

The major disclosure materials impacted by this matter are the supplementary materials (conference call materials) and the European embedded value (EEV) reports disclosed on TDnet for the above periods, as well as the materials for the financial analyst conference call, annual securities report, business report, and integrated report. There is no impact on figures for fiscal 2019 and earlier. These misstatements only affect the profitability metrics for new policies and do not affect the amount of EEV, as well as value of in-force business. There is no impact on accounting figures, insurance premiums paid by customers, or benefits paid to customers.

3. Cause

With respect to the comprehensive medical lump-sum benefit policy product that Dai-ichi Life launched in January 2021, certain data items used to calculate the value of new business were incorrectly set for contracts which had coverage exclusions for specific medical conditions. There was insufficient validation of this data item.

The underlying cause was that this was the first case for Dai-ichi Life in which a product incorporating multiple benefits, including the basic hospitalization benefits, lifestyle-related hospitalization benefits, benefits for specified female illnesses, had coverage exclusions that apply individually for each benefit, and the verification system for the product was insufficient.

4. Background leading to the identification of the misstatements in the value of the new business

In preparation for the development of new products, when the profitability of the comprehensive medical lump-sum benefit policy product was analyzed on a contract-by-contract basis, contracts with an abnormal level of profitability were detected, and it was found that the value of new business had been incorrectly computed to date.

Figures including the value of new business are also shown in the supplementary materials for the first, second and third quarters of the previous fiscal year for the company, but the figures for the first and third quarters are estimated values, and the figures for the second quarter are interim provisional values at the time of the relevant calculations, so the finalized figures at the fourth quarter have been amended. However, the estimated figures for the first quarter of the fiscal 2023 have been recalculated as they are the latest disclosed figures.

6. Future actions and measures to prevent recurrence

Among the major public materials other than the above, those that require revision are to be corrected by this disclosure. As for previous annual securities reports, the Company will submit amended reports dated September 29. To prevent such a situation from occurring in the future, we will review our measurement practices and verification systems, and ensure that necessary and effective controls are in place.
